

OXFORD'S 'BARONET' HOAX BRIDE HARRIS FLEEING FOR ASYLUM

BE STAYED IN WORCESTER

State Detective Says Another Woman Helped "Lady" Bramwell in Escape

Worcester, Dec. 24.—"Lady" Barbara Buffum Bramwell, principal in Oxford's "baronet" wedding hoax, was injured in her escape from Worcester State Hospital, was aided by one or more women and is probably still in this city, State Detective Edward J. McCarthy announced today.

Entering the investigation on order of Dist. Atty. Edwin G. Ford, Detective McCarthy found an eyewitness to the Oxford girl's escape.

"As a result of information at hand I do not believe the girl is out of Worcester," he said. "We are assisted by another woman into an automobile marked on a road at Greenwood Park behind the hospital after she escaped from a second story window."

FELL ON HER FACE
I believe she was injured, perhaps quite badly, in her jump. A woman helped her. She had difficulty getting into the car. We are making a check of doctors and hospitals in Worcester county. The nurse on duty in the ward from which she escaped and fell on her face after she dropped from the window, fell up and ran."

Dr. William A. Bryan, superintendent of the hospital, said it would have been possible for her to have run even with a broken ankle. Other injury in the nervous system attending her flight. Detective McCarthy said that the bridegroom, James Buffum, and his mother, Mrs. J. H. Norman, said that the woman who aided in the escape would be prosecuted regardless of her identity.

APPROVED BY FATHER
Buffum, who is a doctor, denied that he knew his daughter's whereabouts, but expressed sympathy with her fight against the hoax. He said that he had approved the plan by the bride, to welcome her in the Buffum Oxford house if she returns to this country from England, the banker said.

Russia intends to do away with drunkenness. The national drink is vodka, 40 per cent pure alcohol, 60 per cent water. Government controls sales, largely cuts the supply and increases price.

Last year's liquor bill in Russia was $750,000,000.

But would not support half of our bootleg liquor dealers as they are accustomed to being supported.

Boatbuilding will never be profitable in Russia, it is probably would call it a capitalist conspiracy against the Soviet, and march bootleggers and customers out in batches, to be shot.

Ten years ago, Pearl O'Connell was sent to prison convicted of second degree murder. Her daughter, now 19 years old, was hurt after her mother was sentenced. Relatives that cared for the little girl being told, Governor Roosevelt freed the mother, that she may take care of her child. Some that are foolish, will object to that, and be shot.

SHoppers OUT IN FLEECE

A key hot busy through swarmed the streets of the city today for last minute shopping and Yuletide gift errands.

The shopping district was most congested with carloads and steamship terminals close seconds as the scenes of the busiest bazaar.

Every thoroughfare from the North and South stations carried extra cars and ran in double and triple sections, as the hand-laden travelers went home for their big day of the year.

The terminals were exceptionally crowded because of the thousands of planned auto trips to nearby points that were thronged by yesterday's storm.

Many motorists braved the storm's wrath, however, and pushed out of the city through slush-filled roads piled high in tangle of snow, while excited children romped in others with thoughts of grandma's upstart in mind.

Drifted police were taxed to the utmost at the stress of congestion, but seemed to be in luck with the Christmas spirit, as that excited holidayer except the usual call down.

The stores fairly heaved with bargain hunters and many big gains were gained before many of the stores completely ran out of toys and other gift merchandise.

NORRIS-LUCAS WAR NOW UP TO JURY

Nebraska Senator Turns His Attack Directly on President

Washington, Dec. 24 (AP).—The Norris-Lucas conflict swung towards the White House today, with speculation turning on how soon President Hoover would take a hand.

Senator Norris, the Republican Independent from Nebraska, whose earlier from party ranks is sought by Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the Republican National Committee, turned his latest attack directly on the chief executive.

Senator Watson of Indiana, the Republican leader, asserted the state of Norris' reputation was not now before the Senate. As for retaining Lucas, whose participation in an attempt to defeat Norris in the last Congress had been uncovered, Watson said that was up to the President.

He said he would support him to the limit. "I will support him to the limit," he said.

STORM AGAINST LUCAS
These statements came after Representative Wood of Indiana, chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee, announced from the White House steps he was supporting Lucas, and denounced Norris as a "vicious and demagogic" Republican Independent, aligned himself against Lucas with the words "Let them get out—those who have disgraced the party."

The Republican director came back to the fight with another defense of his secret financing of the campaign for election in Nebraska and other states.

NORRIS HITS BACK
"I undertook to make an effort to select the best of the hundreds of thousands of dollars, spent by the party, and the association against the 'booby' amendment," he said.

"By using a criterion which called attention to the evils of the harem and giving publicity to Mr. Hoover's slogan adopted by him when he was 'I am accepting the chairmanship of the Democratic National Committee to help Mr. Smith rid the country of this damnable prohibition'."

Norris said he was "fighting back for the Republican party" when Mr. Hoover himself was a resident and voter of Great Britain.

"Mr. Wood and Mr. Lucas, I am through having to do with them," he said. "The fact that Mr. Wood makes this statement just after talking with the President himself is a reflection on the President's willingness to compromise with the manipulators of controlling the party."

STARS CUSTOM
In dressing the fourth doll, Carmichael, Mrs. Hoover cast aside all her conservative taste in colors. Carmichael was arrayed in bright tints of orange, yellow and brown, with a silk dress and a little short jacket bordered with a bit of fur and lined with gold brocade.

A pretty little hat of brown moire, trimmed with flowers and a touch of gold, was perched on the doll's long black hair, and orange-colored shoes were put on her feet.

The Peggy Ann doll got a pink knitted sweater, white linen shirt and rain, matching a summer coat.

$5,000 GIVEN TO NEEDY IN BASKETS

"...and so they were happy."

Grown folks and little children into whose homes, by reason of good fellowship, the spirit of Christmas was made to shine.

All stories of the Yuletide must have a happy ending. This has a joyful beginning, as well, and through it, brightly shining, runs an unbroken thread of fellowship, generosity and good will of good will toward men and women and children, especially the children.

For this is the day-after-Christmas story of the Boston American Christmas Basket Fund editor. It is a happy story because the basket fund editor has had his own faith in his fellowmen renewed and his own viewpoint of Christmas altered for the better, through association with those who were generous and those who need generosity.

ITS GLORIOUS LESSON

It is a happy story because writing it, the happy cries of children, the trembling thanks of the aged, are ringing in his ears.

It is a happy story because the Basket Fund editor has had his own faith in his fellowmen renewed and his own viewpoint of Christmas altered for the better, through association with those who were generous and those who need generosity.

Until long after dark tonight when the red lights and the green lights gleam in the houses, the fortunate trucks will be going through the snow with baskets of food—turkey and all that goes with turkey for this family and that family where, perhaps, hope of a basket has faded.

Distribution of the Boston American Christmas baskets—the biggest and most complete ever given at Christmas time—was begun bright and early Monday and it will end tonight.

FEELING OF JOY

Approximately $15,000 worth of these baskets will be in the hands of needy families.

You goodfellow can think of that and even if you contributed only a few pennies your Christmas will be the better for it.

The work of the Christmas Basket Fund editor began right after Thanksgiving and carried along with it was the regular work of the Helping Hand department. Through that department, some 1500 families have been cared for, given food or clothing or fuel or money and expert medical assistance in some cases.

Appeal for funds for the baskets was entirely adequate for the current demands of the Helping Hand and you goodfellow's contribution to the baskets distributed weighed in with you, as an act of good fellowship. They contained sufficient food for several days even for large families.

THEIR FIRST TURKEY!

Practically every basket contained a big fat turkey, and in a good many homes tomorrow turkey will never be known as a Christmas dinner. Think of it! They contained sufficient food for several days even for large families.

And in a good many homes there was a regular New England Christmas dinner where, if it had not been for your generosity, they might not have been any dinner at all.

In those baskets besides turkey were three cans of dehydrated soup sufficient to serve six persons, a dozen cranberries, a can of corn, a can of tomatoes, a can of string beans, a can of baked beans, two loaves of bread, half a pound of coffee, a can of applesauce, two pounds of sugar and a pound of hard candy.

No wonder young eyes popped from heads and old eyes gleamed with a new hope.

To every goodfellow, man, woman and child, the Basket Fund editor wishes to say: "Thank you" for those who have said it to him for you would be simply repaid for any personal sacrifice you made if you personally could have seen its results. You couldn't do that but you can take the Basket Fund editor's word that the baskets carried into every home they entered. May your own Christmas be the merrier, the happier for the happiness you have given others.

Carrying out the custom established years ago, Mr. Dorr gave each employee a bank book with its initial deposit of from $10 to $100, according to the length of their service in his Washington st. store.

"You, folks, are great, here we are again. 'Nother year's whizzed 'round and you're all a year older. 'cept me. The whole bunch worked hard the past year and will probably better work a darn sight harder next year—so cheer up! Mrs. Barrett explains she has been bedridden for many weeks with the old age creeping upon her—and her husband tells of his daily visits to the hospital for treatment for rheumatism. But they do not complain. They smile a lot and they are very happy.

Mrs. Barrett's husband is next. She has two little girls, Doris, 8, and Barbara, 3. Mrs. Barrett is a very busy woman, dusting and cleaning and washing. Work is scarce and she has nothing for the children for Christmas day. But some $100,000 she wrote to the Christmas Basket Fund editor and pre-arranged to have a big fat chicken and many other things.

And then over to Pat's house. You'd love to meet Pat's wife and see her smile when she gets her basket. She is only a little girl and she has been very sick. Just two days old and she has a brother who is a baby.

Pat's mother and father go to every day looking for work, for they are many bills to be paid.

Each worker is insured for $500 after being on the payroll for six months and this amount is increased $100 each year until the firm pays the entire cost.

"It's no fun to come home from vacation," he said, when pressed for details. "The folks at home get the biggest thrill of the year out of having their Christmas tree planted and the folks in the store get the biggest thrill of the year out of having their Christmas tree planted."

What gifts they have witnessed! Mother's work and remembrance from months of struggle to keep their families together while fatherless, cold from the lack of winter clothing, many of them forced to remain indoors because of the lack of shoes and rubbers. Old folks, alone and friendless, sitting in little cold rooms and dreaming of better days.

They have seen, shining examples of courage and hope on every side. They have even seen happiness in homes that have witnessed only want and privation for many months.

Small wonder that these men, carrying Christmas cheer in their big trucks, find such pleasure in their work.

Jack Sullivan and Eddie Long were on the job during the night in Shawmut, where hundreds of baskets were delivered. And they started out early in the morning after three hours sleep to finish the lists in Roxbury and the South End.

And they met little Catherine Sullivan, only 16 months old, the youngest of eight children at the first home they visited in Shawmut. The others, except two-year-old Tommy, were in school, but Catherine was home.

She ran to the door when her mother answered the bell, and no sooner had the basket been placed on the floor than she tugged and tugged at the big key.

Of all the children met in the rounds Catherine was the most charming. She even gurgled a "Merry Christmas" to the driver when he said good-bye.

And then to the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Barnett, an aged couple who live in an attic room in Shawmut. Catherine home. They have been married 45 years and have been very happy. Even now, in their grip of adversity, they are happy.

They are very kind and in the man's delivery, they are happy. They ask him to have a cup of tea, for he is tired and cold. And they ask him about his children, and his work and tell him how happy he has made them.

WIFE BED-RIDDEN

Mrs. Barrett explains she has been bedridden for many weeks with the old age creeping upon her—and her husband tells of his daily visits to the hospital for treatment for rheumatism. But they do not complain. They smile a lot and they are very happy.

Mrs. Barrett's husband is next. She has two little girls, Doris, 8, and Barbara, 3. Mrs. Barrett is a very busy woman, dusting and cleaning and washing. Work is scarce and she has nothing for the children for Christmas day. But some $100,000 she wrote to the Christmas Basket Fund editor and pre-arranged to have a big fat chicken and many other things.

And then over to Pat's house. You'd love to meet Pat's wife and see her smile when she gets her basket. She is only a little girl and she has been very sick. Just two days old and she has a brother who is a baby.

Pat's mother and father go to every day looking for work, for they are many bills to be paid.

Each worker is insured for $500 after being on the payroll for six months and this amount is increased $100 each year until the firm pays the entire cost.

Raymond's workers had a mid-summer visit from Santa Dorr this year when each received two weeks vacation with three weeks full pay.

"It's no fun to come home from vacation," he said, when pressed for details. "The folks at home get the biggest thrill of the year out of having their Christmas tree planted and the folks in the store get the biggest thrill of the year out of having their Christmas tree planted."

Mary Christmas at Old Family Home to Make Merry

Superior, Wis., Dec. 24 (AP)—It will be a merry Christmas at the Christmas household where Mary Christmas comes home to make merry. Mary Christmas, her father said today.

And not only Mary, but Cecil Christmas and Mrs. Cecil Christmas will join Mother and Father Christmas in the Christmas home.

So also will Herbert A. Pann, who last year married Mary Christmas. There is no Mary Christmas now in the Christmas home except at Christmas.

They would like to have a night nurse and a day nurse for her in the hospital.

WAITED ALL DAY

Little Earl Parker was looking out the window when the truck arrived at his house. He had been waiting all day, and night was falling when the truck stopped outside. Earl's mother said that she had told the little boy early in the morning that the big basket might come.

"I thought the day."

"I thought we were too late in asking for a basket," she said. "We know there are many who need them and we had given up all day, and I was going to put him to bed when the bell rang. We three hours sleep to finish the lists in Roxbury and the South End."

And they met little Catherine Sullivan, only 16 months old, the youngest of eight children at the first home they visited in Shawmut. The others, except two-year-old Tommy, were in school, but Catherine was home.

Letters From American Readers

Hinds of Families Urged to Report Suffering

Editor Boston American:

In the present crisis of unemployment and hardship I wonder if it would not be timely to express an opinion in regard to the many families, children and adults starving due to the lack of aid on the part of the head of the family to ask for aid from proper authorities.

It is true we are accustomed to consider poverty a disgrace. That point of view would perhaps be justified in times gone by when there was plenty of opportunity for industrious men and women to find occupation by which they could earn their livelihood and be able to save for a rainy day and sometimes succeed in becoming wealthy.

Conditions have changed, however, with the advent of science creating new kinds of machinery, replacing human labor. These machines have become the property of the few and controlled by the few.

The head of a family who is unable to work and has no other means of support cannot find a job should not feel he is to be blamed for these conditions except insofar as he is not co-operating with the proper authorities who are trying to remedy conditions. He is content to be peaceful and fear "socialism" or "Bolshevism" he is hoping against hope that economic situation will straighten itself. Such men should be encouraged to take pride and be urged to come and state his case before the organized welfare board so they may know of his difficulties.

Attention Called to Veterans Petitions

Editor Boston American:

I see in the American readers that my old friend Frank Clark has something to say. Good for you Frank! That's the way for all us veterans. If you are working on the same bill that I am. The last time I saw Frank he told me he was doing something on the Winthrop Bill, but I think my buddy was a change of heart. Now as both of us have got together again we will make some headway on this bill as it does not seem to pay to know everybody in regard to veteran legislation. We want to hear from others in a while. Now Vets, send for someone, either from Mr. Clark or myself. Arthur Peabody, 30 Williams Ave., Lynn, Mass., and we will forward all vet's petitions and circulars that they need. I now want to hear from more vets from Maine and New Hampshire Vermont. Come right in the woods and get going with this. Send for petitions to have filled at once. ARTHUR PEABODY

Legion Politics Blamed for Chaos Over Bonus

Editor Boston American:

Let me in this first paragraph, commend you for immediate insertion of the item which I have written by the various veterans in this section of the New England States, that has been particularly interesting to the veteran, and the people of the nation.

Let me at this time submit an item for insertion in your column to the boys of New England.

All to those who are believing that the American Legion is backing this movement to increase the value of the adjusted service certificates, let me say that it is only the rank and file members of the Legion who are taking any active part in the progression of this movement. The American Legion National Department has done its best to block any progression to further interest of this national movement. Any of you members of the Legion present at the national convention on Oct. 9, 1930, when this question came before the body of delegates from all sections of the country, and when Wright Patman, of Texas, offered in a five minute speech, to explain the conditions surrounding these adjusted service certificates, know that he was not allowed to continue the speech, due to the constant shouting of "out of order."

The Veterans of Foreign Wars have now taken up the gun to step into the firing line and help to further the progression of this issue. Should the daily rumors be investigated, that the beneficiary of the veteran upon his death, is not getting but half of the face value of the adjusted service certificate through the U. S. Veterans' Bureau, it would be found that this statement is correct, which is all the reason in the world why you should fight for the valuation of your certificate now. They say wait and give it to the veteran when he is older. They do not realize that every veteran who served in the trenches, came with 10 years added to his life. FRANK W. CLARK 146 Williams Ave., Lynn.

Forest Hills El "Steal" and the Escalator

Editor Boston American:

I realize fully that public opinion must be created by publicity that is in the hands of public servants for disposition and with this in mind, the Atlantic has come to give me such prominence in this communication as you may deem it deserves.

The Boston Elevated trustees have petitioned the Public Utilities Commission to permit it to abolish the escalator at Forest Hills, and substitute for the same a so-called "ramp." At the hearing before the commission among other objections made to the petition, was a statement by a resident of Forest Hills to the effect that the Elevated have continued the use of the location for many years, despite the fact that

New Divorce Laws Necessary to Save Souls, Rabbi Says

An interview with Rabbi Jacob Katz, pastor of the Montefiore Synagogue, New York, the eighth of a series in an unusual discussion of divorce laws is published today. It presents his views based on a close and intimate contact with New York's teeming millions, as expressed to a Boston Evening American reporter.

The question under discussion is whether the divorce laws should be more liberal or more stringent. The series will be continued daily, presenting the views of outstanding advocates and opponents of liberal divorce.

The interview with Rabbi Katz follows:

I am a Jew. I believe in divorce.

Were I not a Jew and were there no divorce laws in existence I would still believe in divorce.

I believe the most sacred relationship that can exist between man and woman is the state of marriage. And the thing that makes it sacred is the marriage of the soul.

Attack the soul and you attack marriage. How can there be a marriage without the mating of the minds? Destroy the mental comity of a man and a woman and the marriage is dissolved. There is no marriage.

Destroys the Soul

If the water system of a village fails, they build a new system. If the legal system of a village fails, why not build a new system?

The present system of regulating the lives of men and women has failed. We have a law that contemplates the body and betrays the soul. Why not a new legal system that considers the soul and not the body?

The offense for which the marriage contract is voided in New York is infidelity. Can that be a good law?

Are not the bootleggers of booze evil enough? Why breed bootleggers of the soul? But we do. There can be no question but that the moral fibre of our youth has changed. I am not one who will say it is for the better or for the worse. Suffice that it has changed.

Change in Morals

So, too, has the moral character of all people changed.

Why, then, cling to that which has been proven not good, to that which has been proven unfit to meet the problem it has sought to solve?

Pre-Primary Choice of Candidates Assailed

Editor Boston American:

Participation in a pre-primary choice of candidates. Select a slate and force it upon the voters, and that with the support of the party organizations, leaving all other candidates to drift for themselves, as against the power of money combined to defeat all other candidates not so endorsed.

The better than those element seeks to control the nominations. Making a distinction as to who should and who should not aspire to public office.

primary law, which gives the people the choice of candidates, and that from a field open to all.

Why return to boss selection and dictation?

Such is just what the pre-primary convention means, the inauguration of a convention system bringing to life the over-lord of a people's will.

Leave well enough alone. Why change when the primary is the people's best friend?

Let me inaugurate a pre-primary law, is to insult the intelligence of the people.

Posthumous Payment of Soldier Bonus Assailed

Editor Boston American:

If it is the hope of our government that posthumous payment of the soldier debt will be paid from the money hence by the present adjusted service certificates, the government is in error.

The cry of deficit once again roars thru the halls of Congress with Mr. Mellon at the telephone. He, who styled the vets as Heistons and thieving for us. There are yet appropriations for this, that and the other but not a dollar available for payment of a just debt paid due to the men who made the country what it is today in which for some to live beyond the reach of poverty.

Again they "play politics with human misery" but the battle for justice has just begun.

Vandenberg, David I. Walsh and Wright Patman are battling for us. Write to them and to your representatives in Washington. Flood the mails, you veterans! Once more—a call for action! HARRY J. HOLMES been forced by the law to live. Let the law aid them in that desire.

The home is the foundation of the State. Destroy it and the State will fall. Build your homes on the solid foundation of truth, honesty, trust. Those are qualities that come from the soul, not from the law.

See Friday's Boston Evening American for the next interview in this unusual series. It presents the views of Cosmo Hamilton, noted English writer.

Readers of the Boston Evening American are urged to express their opinions on this question of divorce. Letters will be published in the discussion Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop Square, Boston. The most interesting letters will be published in the American.

MINE PIT WAS MISSED TO BURY ROMANOFFS

By JOSEPH E. SHARKEY. (Copyright, 1930, by the Associated Press)

Paris, Dec. 24 (AP)—In a letter written in his own hand, Gen. Maurice Janin today gave the Associated Press a complete story of how the remains and relics of the imperial Russian family came by Russian revolutionaries and how eventually they were brought back to the country.

"The family," he wrote, "had disappeared at Ekaterinburg on the night of July 16 or 17, 1918. 'Pierre Gillard, former tutor of the young czarovich, was there and began a search of the vicinity to determine the fate of the Romanoffs. Nicholas Sokoloff carried the investigation through."

"It was established who had committed the assassinations and how they had done it. Not far from Ekaterinburg the searchers discovered the place where the bodies had been discovered and burned with acid and gasoline."

"In a mine pit they found bits of charred clothing, fragments of bone and a tiny finger, which was later partially identified as that of the empress."

"In the autumn of 1919 Sokoloff and I moved toward the east, and I wanted to reach Europe. The next time I saw him was in March, 1920, at Harbin, where Gen. Dietrich had established headquarters in the general re-

"Dietrich told me he wanted to say the Romanoffs remained in the possession of the Grand Duke Nicholas as quickly as possible. 'Gen. Dietrich,' Janin wrote,

"asked me to take charge of the relics and he accepted out of his own friendship for the Czar. 'Dietrich,' the letter continued, 'brought me three valises containing documents and various other objects in the night. The next day he brought me a fourth valise, or to speak more exactly, a strong box containing human remains.'"

Every person who in any way helped in the Boston Evening American's Christmas Basket Fund will have a real Yuletide thrill from these visual evidences of the happiness taken into thousands of otherwise joyless homes in Greater Boston. Turkeys and Everything!

WILLING HANDS. Isabelle Hurd and Rita Hagerity are among the many willing workers aiding the American Basket Fund sent baskets at St. Augustine's Church, in Dorchester st., South Boston. They are both members of the woman's auxiliary of the church. (Staff photo.)

PATEY'S LIPS SMACKED with expectation as that well loaded basket was set before her by Ed Long. He's one of the many drivers who is scattering joy throughout homes of the needy. The Goodfellows of Boston made good this year and as a result thousands of families of the needy will have a bountiful dinner tomorrow. They will give thanks to the thousands of Goodfellows who made their happy day possible. (Staff photo.)

THIS LITTLE lad examines with wonder the turkey and "fixins" sent to his home by the Basket Fund of the Boston Evening American. Earl and his five-year-old sister, Doris, have found life none too rosy since their father was thrown out of work six months ago. Hunger has been no stranger to the family, but a real Christmas dinner is assured.

IF YOUR DAD had been so unfortunate as to have been at work just a few days during 1930, perhaps your Christmas wouldn't be too good. This mother of eight was cheered in her Shawmut ave. home to get a basket from the American's Basket Fund. (Staff photo.)

OLDER FOLKS NEEDED YOUR HELP as well as the children. The Boston Evening American Basket Fund sought them. Today thousands are happy. They know Christmas will be much happier because of the arrival of the basket with the turkey and groceries. This couple were made happy in their home in Shawmut st. The First National Stores truck driver had just given them a basket. (Staff photo.)

A WHITE CHRISTMAS and a cheerful Christmas is assured thousands of Boston's needy families because thoughtful men and women make it possible for trucks to run to every section of Greater Boston. They are chock full of baskets containing turkeys and other good things to eat. Officials, clerks and drivers at the food base of the First National Stores, Middlesex ave., Somerville, jumped right into the spirit of the Boston Evening American Basket Fund, as they loaded the many trucks for delivery. None will be forgotten. All baskets will be delivered in time for the Christmas meal. Aren't you pleased that you were able to assist in such a charitable and splendid enterprise? It's not too late to aid the fund. Make a few more families happy. They need it. A typical scene is shown below. "That head must come off, sister, we don't eat the head," is what Tommy, 4, was telling Catherine, in their Shawmut ave. home, just after the good truck driver played a real Santa Claus part.

EVERYBODY IS JUST SO WILLING to aid the needy of Boston and assist the Boston Evening American Basket Fund in getting the baskets to the homes. Members of the St. Augustine's Catholic Men's Association will deliver 125 baskets in South Boston.

Bruins Clash With Quakers at Garden Tomorrow

LOCALS ARE TO MEET

Playing faster than ever, and combining in a brilliant way, the Bruins players are expected to show a dazzling game at the Garden tomorrow night, when they meet the Philadelphia Quakers in a National League game.

Right to the peak of their play by three good practice sessions at the Garden this week, the great Boston team would seem about set to make the thrills of the Rangers game a weekly habit in home games at the Garden.

Even Art Ross, usually slow to arrive, looks forward to the coming games of the Bruins with great confidence. He has seen his team start slowly, develop gradually and then all of a sudden find itself in bloom out into the beautifully balanced hockey machine on ice that is on paper.

That flash of speed in the first period of the thrilling game with the Rangers on Saturday night was what the Bruins' manager was looking for sooner or later. Now with three lines and two strong pairs of defense, he expects that the Bruins will be able to set a blinding pace.

Speed, speed and more speed is what Ross is looking for. Bruins always have played fast hockey. That is why they are the greatest attraction in hockey today. And speed and combination play brings the fans to their feet as if by magic in a few other sports.

The Bruins always have felt obligated to give their public open houses and colorful players and a good reason for coming to the Garden and the strengthening of the team by the addition of Red Britton, who arrived in with the team.

Beating Beginning to Show Great Talent

Pratt is beginning to find himself. He has scored in every game of the season. He has shown his ability as a play maker in just coming to the Garden with the Bruins and playing with Harry Oliver and Marty Barry in practice. This week has been remarkable and Philadelphia is bound to have a considerable trouble in getting in the Christmas night game. He is a most unusual way he can come on a game.

It's real threat lies in his ability to come to the Bruins and come to rebounds or a loose puck, and he has the prime requisite of every successful major league of knowing when and where to pass.

Another feature of the practice is that this week and they have been a new feature in the daily practice. They have been passing out to his four line. The Bruins go for a 1-2-3 move, and since a year ago, in regard to passing, they have the most developed and a passing game from goal mouth to blue line has several advantages.

MAT CHAMPION TELLS STORY

ances, certainly kept me pepped up by his succeeding in my corner. After I dropped the first ball he gave me a real good bunch of heart-to-heart advice that seemed to be "college" fighting spirit and ultimately gave me the victory.

I'm going to take my time in mapping out my campaign as a champion. I expect to work regularly, although not several times a week as Bonenberg did after winning the title.

Will Tackle Worthy Opponents Regularly

This barroom bither and you may be fine for a time, but I figure that it is a bit too easy-going, so that I can be all my best if I tackle one worthy opponent every week or 10 days. It is my desire to impress on fans my desire to be a popular fighter, and as such I will not consent to bouts with "marked marrows" or opponents who change names in various localities.

I think I am showing my good faith by consenting to meet such a famous opponent as Bibber McCoy. I could go along freeling on "cup-put" but I want to be a real champion. I am willing to give any rival worthy of it a chance at my crown. If McCoy beats me, I will be the first to shake his hand and congratulate him. I will have the chance to regain the title—I have no man in the world as a challenger, and that especially includes Jimmy London, the Greek, who is recognized in New York and Pennsylvania.

I feel confident that I can hold on to a backdoor—haven't any romance in the making and am not in the marriage market—at least not until I have been disposed. I've had lots of the latter in this city and now I'm going to say I'll say what the sun shines and build up a bankroll that will care for rainy days.

LYNN ENGLISH COURT STARS

Speed and control of Coach Tom Whelan of Lynn English when he sends his basketball team into interscholastic competition, but the size of the players is the factor which should tip the scales of victory to the Lynn side of the floor this winter.

Capt. Larry McGovern, right forward stands well over 6 feet. He is rangy and strong, and can pass over the reach of any other basketball player.

George Chipouras, center, is 6 feet 2 inches tall, and weighs around 185 pounds. Chipouras is a great court man, plays with enough to step into any game and become a star as desired. But Whelan, 37, has little use to his school this season, for on Jan. 10 he will be 20 years young and no ineligible to play school basketball.

Fortunately for the team, Harry Whelan, 6 feet 2 inches tall and almost as good as Chipouras, will step into the center when the rest of the year. Whelan is taller than Chipouras and should outplay the majority of his foes.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
"Golf's Greatest Teacher"

It is, of course, your forward swing that projects the ball away, and sure, I have previously written of the narrow limits to which your club would swing when it connects the ball, it becomes apparent that this slight variation from true form in this half of our swing will have more or less an effect on the ball and the hole. The effect manifests itself in one of two ways. The ball may fall to go straight, or, if it goes straight, it falls to go as far as it otherwise might. Several influences interfere with the forward swing. The center of all is body pushing, or lunging. Sometimes this is nothing but plain pressure, yet you can omit pre-swing and still come forward through your middle body. If you have that habit you will do well to try experimenting to get rid of it, and expect to take some time doing so. Muscles once trained in this wrong way persist, and will fight back for some time at efforts to make them work otherwise.

Rangers Defeat Canadiens, 5 to 1
New York, Dec. 24.—The New York Rangers trounced the Montreal Canadiens, 5 to 1, and advanced to third place in the American division.

The Rangers had all the better of the play in a furiously fought game that frequently was as rough as it was fast.

Battalion to Meet Shea
New York, Dec. 24.—The Battalion, featherweight champion, probably will sign soon for a 10-round bout with Eddie Shea in Chicago on Jan. 23. It was learned today that Battalino's title would not be at stake, however.

Will Tackle Worthy Opponents Regularly
This barroom bither and you may be fine for a time, but I figure that it is a bit too easy-going, so that I can be all my best if I tackle one worthy opponent every week or 10 days. It is my desire to impress on fans my desire to be a popular fighter, and as such I will not consent to bouts with "marked marrows" or opponents who change names in various localities.

I think I am showing my good faith by consenting to meet such a famous opponent as Bibber McCoy. I could go along freeling on "cup-put" but I want to be a real champion. I am willing to give any rival worthy of it a chance at my crown. If McCoy beats me, I will be the first to shake his hand and congratulate him. I will have the chance to regain the title—I have no man in the world as a challenger, and that especially includes Jimmy London, the Greek, who is recognized in New York and Pennsylvania.

I feel confident that I can hold on to a backdoor—haven't any romance in the making and am not in the marriage market—at least not until I have been disposed. I've had lots of the latter in this city and now I'm going to say I'll say what the sun shines and build up a bankroll that will care for rainy days.

HARD WORK FOR ALABAMA TEAM

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 24 (UPI).—The Alabama football squad was to get down to hard practice today in preparation for the annual Rose Bowl football tilt at Pasadena on New Year's Day with Washington State.

Headed by Coach Wallace Wade, the Alabama squad arrived yesterday in time to loosen up a bit before it became dark.

Meanwhile four other teams are preparing to go into action here. The University of North Dakota gridderies meet the Los Angeles city firemen on Christmas Day, and a team of former Notre Dame stars engage with an aggregation of Southwestern all-stars in a charity game here Saturday.

Make Retail Prices Most Attractive!

Nation's Smaller Income Can't Maintain Trade at Full Volume

By B. C. FORBES

New York, Dec. 24—What can be done to make retail prices more attractive?

At first glance, the answer seems to be "nothing."

But a closer examination of the situation reveals that there is much to be done.

The first step is to reduce the cost of production.

This can be done by increasing efficiency and reducing waste.

Second, the cost of distribution must be reduced.

This can be done by improving transportation and reducing handling charges.

Third, the cost of selling must be reduced.

This can be done by reducing overhead expenses and increasing sales volume.

Finally, the cost of the product itself must be reduced.

This can be done by using cheaper materials and improving the design.

By following these steps, retailers can make their prices more attractive and increase their sales volume.

It is the only way to maintain the nation's smaller income at full volume.

FORECASTS TO DATE ARE ALL CHEERFUL

By FRANK H. McLEON

It is interesting to note that all the forecasts for 1931 issued by economists and business and financial leaders to date are cheerful.

They are unanimous in pronouncing that business is scheduled for a sharp upward turn in 1931.

There is no reference to the possibility of a recession or a depression.

The speed of the prosperity train is expected to be maintained throughout the year.

A year ago there was a general feeling of pessimism about the future of the country.

But now the outlook is bright and optimistic.

The reason for this change in opinion is the success of the recovery program.

The government has taken effective measures to stimulate business and industry.

The result is a rapid increase in production and employment.

The confidence of the public has been restored.

The future is bright and full of promise.

The nation is on the path of recovery and progress.

The year 1931 will be a year of great achievement.

The nation's smaller income will be maintained at full volume.

STOCK MARKET

WALL STREET

New York, Dec. 24.—The security markets were decidedly cheered at finding a 20 cent redoubt in the price of Wall Street's Christmas tree today.

The recent abundance of money has been more apparent than real, and the market has been more buoyant than it should have been, but the fact that the Federal Reserve would prove more useful than ornamental.

MARKET WEEK COVER

Stocks were with a brisk advance. Bonds were only a trifle steadier, but the effects could scarcely be expected to be felt so promptly in that market. The advance of stocks was evidently accelerated by short covering.

The market closed with a strong tone, although somewhat under the day's high levels. Despite the preliminary day's quiet, the list moved up 2 to 7 points in the most active lines.

Large profits taking place in the extreme gains from fractions to 2 points in the case of the day's advance. Although chemical rose 5 points, it was back to its previous level of 2 of a 3-point gain.

1,000,000 SHARES SOLD

Over 1,000,000 shares of stock were sold in the New York Stock Exchange today. The volume was the largest since the day's sales aggregated only 1,400,000 shares.

The favorable interpretation placed on the reduction of the Federal Reserve Bank's discount rate from 2 1/2 to 2 per cent, in contrast to the rather cynical view which had been taken of the action of the Federal Reserve Bank, which had caused the rate down from the peak of 6 per cent.

During earlier months of the year, however, the bond market was strong, and credit not only cheap but readily available.

The heavy liquidation by banks of bond investments to raise cash for the purpose of the Federal Reserve Bank's developments of recent weeks, and the fact that the Federal Reserve Bank will encourage them to borrow from the reserve rather than from their investments.

CHEER FOR COPPERS

Anacosta's declaration of its regular dividend was received with interest in part for the rise in that stock and the fact that more copper is being produced which has been manifest in copper prices in the past few days.

The fact that the price of copper is up 20 cents in the past few days, and the fact that the price of copper is up 20 cents in the past few days, and the fact that the price of copper is up 20 cents in the past few days.
